Introduction
Professor Stephen Whitefield, Head of Department

THE YEAR PAST has been one of intense activity on multiple fronts of great importance to the Department. First, as a consequence of successful fund-raising with Christ Church and Brasenose, whose cooperation is hugely appreciated, we have been able fully to endow two University Lectureships. Second, with the budgetary bonus of these endowments, plus the implementation of the Department’s ‘size and shape’ review which led to a modest but significant reduction in our total staffing Full Time Equivalence, plus further cooperation with Colleges led by Courses Team Manager Maria Moreno – Christ Church, Lady Margaret Hall, Nuffield, St Cross, and University – we were able to double our total funding for doctoral studentships. Third, even with the modest reduction in our total permanent staff compliment, we have made six new permanent appointments (Balliol, Brasenose, Magdalen, Nuffield, St Anne’s, St Hugh’s) as well as a number of fixed-term positions that should put us in a good position for the upcoming Research Excellence Framework (REF) submission. I am very grateful to all those who took part in the arduous appointment process, in particular to Petra Schleiter, who is leading the Department’s REF exercise. Fourth, with the able leadership of our Deputy Head of Department, Paul Martin, we were successful in winning funding (subject to final agreement on the budget) to introduce step-change to our undergraduate quantitative methods provision. Fifth, thanks to the intellectual power of our academics and the superb assistance of our Research Facilitator, Rasangi Prematilaka, we have seen a marked improvement in the success rate and total research funding awards. Sixth, with the vital input of our Finance and Projects Manager, Genevieve J. Garrido, and the Departmental Administrator, Janice French, we have managed all this within budget while at the same time undertaking a major refurbishment that will make DPIR space much more attractive for all to work in. Seventh, with Kate Candy in the lead, we have continued to develop our alumni relations and communication and, with Liz Greenhalgh, to increase our capacity for knowledge exchange. Last, but certainly not least, the Department has ensured its success for the future by appointing my successor to start in January, 2014, Elizabeth Frazer.
Teaching

UNDERGRADUATE TEACHING

Philosophy, Politics and Economics (PPE) is the Department's largest undergraduate joint degree, popular both in the UK and around the world: Michaelmas 2012 saw an intake of 264 students of 24 different nationalities. Only 15.6% of applicants were successful for 2012 entry, and this stiff competition for places continues to attract a high calibre of students. In summer 2012, approximately 86% of PPE Finals students took at least one Politics paper in their exams, demonstrating that Politics remains the most popular discipline within the joint degree.

History and Politics, the Department's second joint undergraduate degree, continues to grow in popularity. The course had a strong intake of 46 in Michaelmas term 2012, and the total number of applicants continues to rise each year.

Student and Alumni Awards, Fellowships and Prizes have included the following:

Francesca Burke, DPhil Politics graduate, was the co-winner of the 2013 Leigh Douglas Memorial Prize for her doctoral thesis 'Students of Resistance: Palestinian Student Mobilization at Home and in Exile'. The prize, which is awarded annually by the British Society for Middle Eastern Studies, recognises the best PhD dissertation on a Middle Eastern topic in the Social Sciences or Humanities. Francesca is currently a Research Fellow for the Council for British Research in the Levant (CBRL) based in the British Institute in Amman, where she is conducting research for the British Academy-funded research project 'Higher Education and Political Change in the Arab World'.

Miriam Bradley, DPhil IR graduate, was awarded the Bapsybanoo Marchioness of Winchester Thesis Prize 2012 for a paper entitled ‘Protecting Civilians in Internal Armed Conflict: The International Committee of The Red Cross and the office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees’. The Winchester Prize is awarded by University of Oxford Social Sciences for the most outstanding thesis in the area of International Relations, with particular reference to human rights and fundamental freedoms. Miriam is now a Teaching Fellow in International Security at University College London (UCL). She completed her doctorate in International Relations, examining the approaches taken by humanitarian agencies to protect civilians during internal armed conflict. She has an MSc in Forced Migration (Oxford) and an MSc in Development Studies (Birkbeck).

Allard Duursma, DPhil student, won the Stuart A. Bremer travel award for best PhD student paper at the annual European Peace Science Conference. Allard’s paper was entitled ‘African Solutions to African Challenges: Explaining the Role of Legitimacy in Mediating African Civil Wars’. The travel award seeks to enhance the exchange of scientific findings between young European and American Peace Scientists. Each year one European graduate scholar will be invited to attend the North American conference of the Peace Science Society.

Janina Dill, DPhil International Relations graduate, was awarded two prizes for the same thesis: the Political Studies Association 2012 Lord Bryce Prize for best dissertation in International Relations/Comparative Studies and the 2012 Dasturzada Dr Jal Pavry Memorial Prize. Her thesis was entitled The Definition of a Legitimate Target in US Air Warfare: A Normative Enquiry into the Effectiveness of International Law in the Conduct of Hostilities. Janina’s research focuses on international law in war, specifically its philosophical foundations and normative scope, as well as the emergence and demise of states in international law and the legal and political challenges associated with state failure, state building and self-determination. Janina is currently Hedley Bull Research Fellow at the University of Oxford.

Ignacio Jurado, DPhil Politics graduate, was awarded the Political Studies Association 2012 Arthur McDougall Fund prize for best dissertation in Elections, Electoral Systems or Representation. The thesis was entitled The Politics of Distribution. This is the second year in a row in which an Oxford student has won the prize; last year James Dray was given the award.

Benjamin Martill was awarded the Deirdre and Paul Malone Prize 2012 for his thesis entitled ‘Agreement Through Opposition: Political Ideology and Legislative Constraint in the ‘Special Relationships’ of the United States’. This prize is awarded annually to the student who has produced the highest-marked MPhil in International Relations thesis and who intends to continue to the DPhil.

Nina Silove, DPhil student in International Relations, has been awarded a Pre-doctoral Research Fellowship with the International Security Program at the Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs at Harvard University. As a Research Fellow Nina will contribute to the Center’s research activities while also advancing her own work, which examines how states have responded to the challenge of formulating grand strategy in the post-Cold War period, with a focus on the response of the United States to the rise of China.

Michael Sulmeyer, DPhil Politics graduate, was awarded the Political Studies Association 2012 Walter Bagehot Prize for best dissertation in Government and Public Administration. The thesis was entitled ‘Money for Nothing: Understanding the Termination of US Major Defense Acquisition Programs’.

Appointments, Prizes and Awards

Dr Timothy Power, University Lecturer in Brazilian Studies, was elected Treasurer of the Latin American Studies Association (LASA). Founded in 1966, LASA is the largest professional association for individuals and institutions engaged in the study of Latin America. Dr Power’s term as Treasurer began in June 2013 and runs until May 2016.

Dr Theresa Kuhn and Dr Claudia Schrag Sternberg were jointly awarded the Theseus Award for Promising Research on European Integration 2012. Dr Kuhn received the Theseus award for her doctoral dissertation ‘Individual Transnationalism and EU Support: An Empirical Test of Deutsch’s Transactionalist Theory’. Dr Schrag Sternberg received the award for her book ‘The Struggle for EU Legitimacy: Public Contestation 1950s-2005’. The award distinguishes excellent research by a junior researcher in the field of European integration.

Professor Michael Freeden, Emeritus Professor, was awarded this year’s Sir Isaiah Berlin Prize for Lifetime Contribution to Political Studies by the Political Studies Association. The judging panel concluded that his research on liberalism, including the monographs ‘The New Liberalism: An Ideology of Social Reform and Liberalism Divided: A Study of British Political Thought 1914-1939’, has helped to advance the understanding of ideology and politics.

Professor Walter Mattli, along with co-author Tim Büthe, has been awarded the 2012 Best Book Award of the International Studies Association (ISA) for ‘The New Global Rulers: The Privatization of Regulation in the World Economy’ (Princeton University Press, 2011).

Dr Harry Verhoeven was selected as one of ten finalists in the Global Water Forum’s Emerging Scholars Award, judged from around 800 entries on the themes of ‘water security’, ‘water economics’, and ‘transboundary water governance’.

RESEARCH FUNDING

As the Department’s research projects and activities come to fruition we are moving ahead with a strong emphasis on achieving impact in a more prominent way than in previous years. We are committed to getting our research results across to targeted beneficiaries and have been methodically planning dissemination activities in each of our research funding applications. It is our aim to ensure that the knowledge and research findings that our research activities produce contribute to public debate and to policy formation and innovation. To facilitate and promote the transfer of knowledge we have organised knowledge exchange seminars and media training sessions for our academics, early career researchers and postdoctoral community.

In terms of the funding applications that we have worked on this past year, it is evident that there has been a slight fall in numbers of applications submitted to funding agencies. Nevertheless, there has been a sharp increase in the number of funding awards received in comparison to the last 3 - 4 years. We hope that this is a result of the focus and considerable effort we have put towards strengthening the quality of our funding applications.

We have also put in a number of applications that target areas of research that are of increasing importance and interest in the international political arena at present, which we hope will come to realisation in the next academic year.

The Department’s preparations for the REF submission have been gaining momentum over the academic year as we progress towards the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) submission deadline in November 2013. The Department’s preparations for its submission have been led by Dr Petra Schleiter, REF Co-ordinator, and Dr Mark Philp, Impact Case Studies Co-ordinator, with support provided by Rasangi Prematilaka, Research Facilitator, and Liz Greenhalgh, Knowledge Exchange Officer.

EVENTS
The Department hosted and organised over 30 conferences, workshops and training programmes covering various research interests. These events are a valuable aspect of the Department’s activities, enhancing the profile of the Department and providing opportunities for the exchange of knowledge and perspectives between local, national and international academics, graduate students, practitioners and policymakers.

RESEARCH CENTRES AND PROGRAMMES
The research centres and programmes continue to showcase the diversity of the Department’s research through their seminars, workshops and collaborative projects, as will be seen in the following pages. Please see page 25 for a list of visitors to Department research centres and programmes.

Centre for International Studies (CIS)

http://cis.politics.ox.ac.uk

Directors:
Professor Kalypso Nicolaidis
Professor Andrew Hurrell (Co-Director MT 2012 and HT 2013)

Established in 1992, CIS exists to promote and advance research in International Relations in Oxford. CIS sponsors externally-funded research projects, convenes conferences and seminars, and hosts visiting scholars. The work of CIS involves close association with two major research programmes — the Global Economic Governance Programme (GEG) and the Oxford Institute for Ethics, Law and Armed Conflict (ELAC) — a range of smaller research projects, and the individual research of faculty and postdoctoral fellows.

Highlights of Events
Workshops and Conferences
• ‘The Future of Constructivist Research in International Relations’, 30 April 2013, Professor Kathryn Sikkink, Professor Iver Neumann, Professor Martha Finnemore and Professor Amitav Acharya
• Dahrendorf Conference, ‘Combining Freedom and Diversity: Lessons from Experience in Britain, Canada, France, Germany and the United States’, 3-5 May 2013
• ‘Gridlock: Why Global Cooperation is Failing When We Need It Most’, 21 May 2013

Seminar Series
• ‘Post-Conflict State Building: Practitioners’ Perspectives’, Michaelmas Term 2012, organised by Professor Richard Caplan, included:
  - ‘The Role of the Media in Post-Conflict Peacebuilding: What Works? How Do We Know?’, 31 October 2012, Anthony Borden
  - ‘From State Building to Member State Building: the EU’s Contribution to Stability in the Western Balkans’, 14 November 2012, Stefan Lehne
  - ‘Political Economy of Statebuilding: Power after Peace’, 21 November 2012, Professor Mats Berdal, Dr Dominik Zaum and Will Evans

- ‘The Mortality and Morality of Nations: Israelis, Afrikaners, Quebecois’, 13 May 2013, Dr Uriel Abulof
- ‘Symbolic Power in the World Trade Organization’, 29 May 2013, Dr Matthew Eagleton-Pierce

Highlights of research projects

In collaboration with the Faculty of Law and the Faculty of Philosophy, an interdepartmental project on ‘Justice and Democracy beyond the State’ was established. The aim of the project is to bring together people interested in legal and political philosophy with those interested in Europe for a discussion about where these areas meet.

New Books

- Exit Strategies and State Building (Oxford University Press, 2012) edited by Professor Richard Caplan

Oxford Institute for Ethics, Law and Armed Conflict (ELAC)

http://www.elac.ox.ac.uk

Directors:
Professor Jennifer Welsh
Dapo Akande
Dr David Rodin

ELAC is a leading global centre for the interdisciplinary study of the ethics, law, and politics of armed conflict. Its central aim is to strengthen law, norms and institutions to restrain, regulate and prevent armed conflict.

Highlights of events

Workshops and Conferences

- Targeted Killings, Drones and the Right to Life. ELAC and the new Oxford Martin Programme on Human Rights for Future Generations (HRFG) co-hosted an expert meeting in July 2013 with Christof Heyns, UN Special Rapporteur on extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions.
- ‘Symmetries: International Humanitarian Law and International Human Rights Law.’ In July 2013 ELAC and HRFG hosted a two day transatlantic workshop with the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), attended by leading academic and military lawyers, and officials from the UK and US Governments.
- Humanitarian Ethics Workshops. Dr Hugo Slim continued his roundtable discussions with NGOs and humanitarian agencies participating in and supporting ELAC’s Humanitarian Ethics project. The Oxford Humanitarian Group hosted seminars in 2012-13 to complement this research.

Seminars and Other Events

- Lunchtime Seminars. ELAC co-hosted this popular series with the Changing Character of War Programme (CCW) in Michaelmas term 2012. Speakers included Professor Sir Adam Roberts (Oxford) and Professor Seumas Miller (CAPPE).
- Other Events. In 2012-13 ELAC co-hosted lectures with Martin Griffiths (former Deputy Head of the UN Supervisory Mission in Syria with Kofi Annan), Helen Clark (Administrator of the UN Development Programme and former Prime Minister of New Zealand), and ICRC Director-General Yves Daccord. Other highlights included seminars on torture, global nuclear order, the Responsibility to Protect (R2P), and a workshop on Just War Theory with Professor Jeff McMahan. ELAC also co-hosted the Stanton Lecture Series with The Blavatnik School of Government.

Research Highlights

• ‘The Prevention Toolbox: Systematising Policy Tools for the Prevention of Mass Atrocities’. Funded by the Australian Civil-Military Centre, this builds upon the findings of ELAC’s recent project ‘The Responsibility to Prevent’ and will identify a focused set of policy tools for preventing mass atrocities. A series of policy briefings and final workshop have been planned for September 2013.
• In July 2013, in recognition of her research in this area, Professor Jennifer Welsh was appointed Special Adviser to the UN Secretary-General for R2P, at the Assistant Secretary-General level.
• ‘Military Enhancement: Design for Responsibility and Combat Systems’. This collaborative project with the 3TU.Centre for Ethics and Technology, (Delft) examines the ethical and legal implications of new military technology. A two-day research workshop took place in Oxford in July 2013.
• Oxford University Press has recently published ‘International Law and the Classification of Conflicts’ (Wilmshurst (ed), 2012). This was the result of a project by Chatham House which concluded with a weekend workshop hosted by ELAC.

Other shorter workshops take place at various points throughout the year. Negotiations are currently under way to link the Spring School with the Interuniversity Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) Summer School at the University of Michigan, thus expanding further the global profile and attendance of the Spring School.

Highlights of events

Annual Week of Spring School Courses
The annual week of Spring School courses took place on 15-19 April 2013, the theme being ‘Presenting Statistical Results Effectively’.
Topics included: Crash Course in R; Making Good Graphs; Density Estimation and Descriptives; Displaying Multivariate Data, Presenting Linear Model Effects; GLM Theory.
Course instructors were Professor Robert Andersen (University of Toronto) and Professor David Armstrong (University of Wisconsin - Milwaukee).

Short Course
‘Multilevel Analysis for the Social Sciences’; 1-2 May 2013, Professor Marco Steenbergen (University of Zurich). Topics included: Hierarchical Linear Models; Models for Cross-Classified Data; Multilevel Logit Models for Binary and Ordinal Dependent Variables.

Public Policy Unit (PPU)

http://ppu.politics.ox.ac.uk

Directors:
Dr Stuart White
Professor Iain McLean (Research Director)

The Centre’s aims and objectives are to undertake policy-relevant academic research and, by means of events which bring academics and policymakers into discussion of this research, provide a bridge between academic research and policymaking.

Highlights of events

Workshops and Conferences
• ‘The Impact of Research’, 29 May 2013, Dr Mark Philp
Centre for the Study of Social Justice (CSSJ)

http://social-justice.politics.ox.ac.uk/

Director:
Professor Simon Caney

The Centre’s aim continues to be providing a forum that brings together Oxford’s large group of political theorists with an interest in problems of social justice, broadly conceived. Its core membership comes mainly from the Department of Politics and International Relations, but also includes colleagues in Philosophy, Law and Economics. Through its fortnightly lunchtime seminars it provides a focus and a point of contact for post-doctoral fellows in political theory, as well as for academic visitors to Oxford associated with the Centre. It also sponsors conferences and workshops organised by its members on relevant topics.

Highlights of events

Conference
• ‘The Politics of Equality: The Oxford University Graduate Political Theory Conference’, 25-26 April 2013, organised by Puneet Dhaliwal, Elizabeth Finneron-Burns, Christine Hobden and Marius Ostrowski. The keynote speakers were Professor Nils Holtug (Copenhagen) and Professor Jonathan Wolff (University College London).

Workshops and Conferences
• ‘Opening the Bottlenecks: A New Theory of Equal Opportunity’, 6 November 2012; a joint CSSJ (Oxford) and CELPA (Warwick) workshop on Professor Joseph Fishkin’s work, held at Worcester College, and organised by Dr Zofia Stemplowska. The respondents comprised Professor Andrew Mason (Warwick), Dr Stemplowska and Professor Victor Tadros (Warwick).
• ‘Justice and the Global Commons’, 14 December 2012, co-organised by Professor Simon Caney (Oxford) and Theresa Scavenius (Copenhagen). The speakers included Dr Chris Armstrong (Southampton), Professor Caney, Theresa Scavenius, Professor Henry Shue, and Professor Hillel Steiner (Manchester).
• Halfday workshop, 26 February 2013, organised by Tom Theuns – with papers by Professor David Miller, Professor Simon Caney and Dr Rebecca Reilly-Cooper, and with responses by Jason Gabriel, James Christensen and Tom Theuns; followed by a panel discussion of a paper by Caleb Yong.
• ‘Workshop on Human Rights’ held at Worcester College, Oxford (a joint CSSJ-CELPA event), 3 May 2013, co-organised by Dr Zofia Stemplowska and Dr Massimo Renzo (Warwick). The speakers were Professor Victor Tadros (Warwick), Dr Massimo Renzo (Warwick), and Dr Stemplowska; and the respondents were Professor Cécile Fabre, Professor Caney and Dr Andrea Sangiovanni (KCL).
• ‘Recent Themes from Adam Swift’s Work: Ideal Theory, Family and Education’, 8 May 2013, organised by Professor Simon Caney and Dr Zofia Stemplowska, funded by the Society for Applied Philosophy (SAP) in addition to CSSJ. The speakers were Professor David Estlund (Brown), Professor Serena Olsaretti (ICREA, Pompeu Fabra), and Professor Rob Reich (Stanford); and the respondents were Dr Matthew Clayton (Warwick), Dr Anca Gheaus (Sheffield), and Dr Laura Valentini (UCL). There was also a roundtable including Alice Baderin, Professor David Miller, Fay Niker, and Dr Mark Philp.

Lectures
• 7 May 2013: ‘A Puzzle of Plural Obligation’ by Professor David Estlund (Brown). The respondents were Ian Carroll and James Christensen.

Oxford-Sciences Po Research Group in the Social Sciences (OXPO)

http://oxpo.politics.ox.ac.uk/

Director:
Dr Florence Faucher

OXPO is a meeting point for social science scholars in Oxford and at Sciences Po, who work on the comparative analysis of the evolution of political systems and societies, in Europe and beyond. It coordinates various comparative research projects that contribute toward this goal and it offers opportunities to develop new collaborations.

Details of books, journal articles, chapters or papers explicitly supported by OXPO, or completed by their authors thanks to the visit they made under the OXPO exchange framework, can be found at: http://oxpo.politics.ox.ac.uk/publications/index.asp
Highlights of events

OXPO runs a successful and popular visitors programme between Oxford and Sciences Po. In 2012-13, OXPO facilitated two French scholars’ stay at Nuffield College: Dr Olivier Dabène and Dr Christine Chivallon. It has sponsored two visiting professorships from Oxford scholars at Sciences Po: Professor Desmond King and Professor Geoffrey Evans.

Moreover students from both institutions have been able to study for a period this year at the other institution: Dr Florence Johsua, Tom Chevallier and Alicia-Dorothy Mornington from Sciences PO, and Felix Krawatzek, Shani Mor and Tom Theuns from Oxford.

Workshops and Conferences

• Workshop: ‘The Restructuring of European States: Conceptual and Empirical Issues’, 13-14 December 2012, Professor Desmond King and Professor Patrick Le Galès, at Sciences Po
• ‘Combining Freedom and Diversity: Lessons from Experience in Britain, Canada, France, Germany and the United States’, 3-5 May 2013, Dahrendorf Colloquium, St Antony’s College, Oxford

Doctoral seminars

• Theseus Doctoral Workshop 2013 ‘The EU and the Global Crisis: Challenges to EU Governance, Policy Responses and the Legitimacy Gap’, 20-21 June 2013 at Sciences Po
• ‘Histoire de l’Europe du XXe siècle. Continuités et ruptures’ 14 - 15 June 2013, featuring participants from Universites de Bruxelles, Berlin (Humboldt), Geneva, Oxford, Paris Sciences Po and ENS Cachan, in collaboration with the MEHRC and the network EurHist XX

• ‘Explaining Latin America’s Fourth Wave of Regionalism’, 1 February 2013, Dr Olivier Dabène (Sciences Po)
• ‘Street Politics: Violence, Citizenship and Post-Conflict Reconstruction in Côte d’Ivoire’, 18 February 2013, Dr Richard Banegas (Sciences Po)

Highlights of research projects

OXPO brings together scholars from the Department of Politics and International Relations, the Department of Sociology and Nuffield College at Oxford University, the Maison Française d’Oxford and several research centres within Sciences Po (such as CERI, CEVIPOF, OSC) to collaborate on research projects. More details about our research projects can be found at: http://oxpo.politics.ox.ac.uk/projects/index.asp.

Conclusion

OXPO has played a key role in facilitating many events and publications. OXPO does not plan or organise research: it accompanies researchers’ projects, and serves as an incentive to develop French-British collaborative projects in sociology and in political science. Feedback from our reports, projects and publications suggests that our visitors benefit very much from their association with OXP.

Reuters Institute for the Study of Journalism (RISJ)

http://reutersinstitute.politics.ox.ac.uk

Director:
Dr David Levy

The Reuters Institute’s core funding comes from the Thomson Reuters Foundation and seeks to match that through other research grants and sponsorship.

The Institute marks the University of Oxford’s commitment to create an international research centre in the comparative study of journalism. The Institute aims to serve as the leading forum for a productive engagement between scholars from a wide range of disciplines and the practitioners of journalism. It brings the depth and rigour of academic scholarship of the highest standards to major issues that are relevant to the world of news media. It is global in its perspective and in the content of its activities.

Key developments in past year include the expansion of the Reuters Institute Digital News Report and the creation of a commercial publishing agreement with I B Tauris.
Events in 2012-13

Seminars
• RISJ Wednesday seminars (Green Templeton College)
• Media Research Seminars (Reuters Institute)
• Media and Politics (Nuffield College)

In addition, some of the special events over the past year have included:

Selected conferences and workshops
• ‘Journalism ethics: Individual, institutional or cultural?’, St Anne’s College
• ‘Transparency and Accountability in Government and Media’ with Duke University and the Rothermere American Institute, Oxford
• ‘The Future of Drones in News Gathering and Media Production’, Reuters Institute, Oxford
• ‘Communicating Risk and Uncertainty’, St Anne’s College, Oxford
• ‘The Economics of Broadcasting’, Said Business School, Oxford
• ‘Audiences, Media Environments and Democartisation After the Arab Spring’, St Anne’s College, Oxford

Selected lectures, panels and launches
• Reuters Memorial Lecture 2012: ‘More News is Good News: Democracy & Media in India’, given by Prannoy Roy, CEO of New Delhi TV
• Launch of RISJ publication ‘Ten Years that Shook the Media World’, Institute for Government, London
• Launch of RISJ publication ‘Transformations in Egyptian Journalism since the January 25 Revolution’, Frontline Club, London
• Launch of RISJ publication ‘Remotely Piloted Aircraft Systems and Journalism: Opportunities and Challenges of Drones in News Gathering’, Global Editors Network News Summit, Paris
• RISJ/BBC Butler Lecture: ‘What Obama’s Elections Have Taught the Media - and the Rest of Us’, given by Professor Larry J. Sabato, Professor of Politics and Director of the University of Virginia Center for Politics

Research Projects

Reuters Institute Digital News Report 2013
The Reuters Institute Digital Report 2013 reveals new insights about digital news consumption and makes these widely available through a publication and dedicated website. Based on a representative YouGov survey of online news consumers across nine countries – UK, US, Germany, France, Denmark, Spain, Italy, Japan and Brazil – the report is an ambitious project tracking changing digital news behaviour over the next decade which has already drawn considerable interest.

The Role of Media in Democratisation
This research, funded by DPIR, is designed to develop understanding of the role of media in democratisation and the implications of changing local media landscapes and enhanced freedom of expression during political transitions on democratic socialisation with a focus on the Middle East after the Arab Spring.

The International Reporting of Risk and Uncertainty around Climate Science
Scientists and politicians are increasingly using the language of risk to describe the climate change challenge. But understanding the concepts of risk and uncertainty – and how to communicate them – is a hotly debated issue. The project and resulting book analyse how the international media present these and other narratives around climate change across six countries: Australia, France, India, Norway, the UK and the USA.

The Euro Crisis, Media Coverage, and Perceptions of Europe within the EU
This project examines how Europeans understand the challenges facing the Euro and the workings of the European Union and European Central Bank through the news media of their countries. It is being undertaken with a network of partners in France, Finland, Belgium, Germany, Greece, Italy, the Netherlands, Poland and Spain.

Funders: John Fell Fund, University of Oxford, and internal funding at partner institutions
External Relations

Partnerships and Collaborations include:

• Open Society Foundations, BBC College of Journalism, Global Editors’ Network, BBC Trust, Rothermere American Institute, Duke University and Tsinghua University for joint events
• Google, BBC, Ofcom, Newsworks, Roskilde University, Hans Bredow Institute Hamburg and France Télévisions, for the Reuters Institute Digital News Report 2013
• BBC for the televised annual David Butler Lecture
• Green Templeton College, Columbia University and European Journalism Observatory for collaborative research

Media and Democracy in Central and Eastern Europe (MDCEE)

http://mde.politics.ox.ac.uk/

Director:
Professor Jan Zielonka

Administered by DPIR, but hosted at St Antony’s College, MDCEE is an interdisciplinary research project launched in October 2009 and funded by the European Research Council. It aims to investigate the often troublesome and poorly understood relationship between democracy and the media in Central and Eastern Europe. However, our findings are broadly applicable to consolidating democracies worldwide.

The research team is led by Professor Jan Zielonka, supported by Professor Terhi Rantanen of the London School of Economics and Political Science, the project’s Co-Investigator. The project’s four strong Research team comprises full-time Research Fellows: Drs Péter Bajomi-Lázár, Ainius Lašas, Václav Štětka and Michał Wenzel.

Main Workshops and Conferences Highlights

• Workshop: ‘MDCEE & MEDIADEM Projects’, 15 November 2012. MDCEE and the MEDIADEM project organised a joint workshop in order to share their research findings. MEDIADEM (‘European Media Policies Revisited: Valuing & Reclaiming Free and Independent Media in Contemporary Democratic Systems’) is a European research project aimed at examining the factors that promote or hinder policy development for media freedom and independence.
• Conference: ‘Political Parties and Party Systems in Central & Eastern Europe’, 16-17 November 2012. MDCEE hosted a 2-day workshop, with presentations from scholars on political party structures in countries throughout the CEE region.
• Conference ‘Media and Democracy: Central Eastern Europe in a comparative context’, 9-11 July 2013. The final major conference in Oxford hosted keynote speakers from the CEE region and wider world. It included presentations from MDCEE researchers on their findings, and final reports, and sought to suggest new ways for the study of the relationship between democracy and the media, applicable in Eastern Europe, to other consolidating democracies in areas such as the Balkans, Latin America, Asia, the Middle East and Africa, to advance.

The project ran a successful series of seminars in collaboration with our Visiting Fellows during the Michaelmas 2012 and Hilary 2013 terms. Our Principal Investigators and Senior Research Fellows have remained in demand for conferences and comment on the CEE regions politics and media developments in various media outlets.

Highlights of Research Activities

• The project continued to host Visiting Research Fellows in the 2012-13 academic year, with fourteen visitors working with the team over the period. We were delighted to welcome a number of renowned academics from the fields of Political Science and Media Studies, and to have Professor Iveta Radičová (former Slovakian Prime Minister) join us for a term.
• Dr Henrik Örnebring left to take up a new teaching and research position in his native Sweden.
• We recruited an additional Research Fellow on the project, Dr Michał Wenzel, who joined the project in May 2013 from the Warsaw School of Social Sciences and Humanities (SWPS), in Poland.
• In 2013, our Senior Research Fellows undertook a further round of fieldwork in a number of the ten Central and Eastern European countries being researched by the project, continuing to interview key practitioners and actors in the political and media fields in the region.
• Our Fellows and Principal Investigators are routinely sought out by media outlets in the CEE region for comment and analysis on regional media policy issues.
The research team continues to publish widely in relevant journals and edited books.

Major journal articles published in the year (to date) include:
- East European Politics & Societies (Feb, 2013; 27[1])
- Communication, Politics & Culture (Volume 45)
- International Journal of Press/Politics (online – Aug, 2013)

Articles are in preparation for submission/publication in editions of:
- Global Media and Communications Journal
- Central European Journal of Communications
- East European Politics & Societies

External relations

The project retains strong research links with our partners, the Department of Media and Communications at the London School of Economics and Political Science, and the Reuters Institute for the Study of Journalism, University of Oxford.

Anglo-German ‘State of the State’ Fellowship Programme

http://www.politics.ox.ac.uk/index.php/anglo-german-state-of-the-state-fellowship-programme/anglo-german-project.html

Director:
Dr Radoslaw Zubek

The Anglo-German Fellowship Programme, which has run since 2009, aims to enable outstanding scholars at the start of their careers to spend time at the University of Oxford and to turn their finished doctoral theses into a manuscript suitable for publication with a good university press. The programme is funded by the German Volkswagen Foundation, and is run in collaboration with the Universities of Bremen and Göttingen (Department of Politics) and the University of Oxford (DPIR, and the Institute of European and Comparative Law, Faculty of Law). The fellowship programme is multidisciplinary, and is open to people who work in the fields of political science, law, history, sociology or economics as long as they work on the transformation of the modern state (broadly conceived) with a focus on Western Europe and/or European integration.

Highlights of events

Workshops and Conferences
- The ‘State of the State’ lecture series was organised by the fellows. Speakers included Professor Morten Rasmussen (University of Copenhagen) and Professor Frederick Solt (University of Iowa).
- ‘Transformations of the State: European Perspectives’: this fourth Anglo-German conference was held on 31 May 2013 and was organised around three panels. Professor Catherine E. De Vries (Oxford) delivered the keynote speech.

External Relations
- German Volkswagen Foundation
- University of Bremen
- University of Göttingen

Finance

The Department has progressed through the year in a good financial state, and ended the year with a surplus of £143k, bringing the reserves to a healthy £1.6 million. Factors contributing to this surplus included a 37% increase in the income generated from college visiting students and journalist fellows at the Reuters Institute for the Study of Journalism. Adding to this surplus was a 2nd unbudgeted session of the Department’s executive education programme. During the year the Department has been successful in delivering increased annual studentship funding, which has included securing matching funding from various colleges. We were also able to utilise part of this year’s income to upgrading the work and meeting space in the Manor Road Building for both students and staff. The budget for the 2013-14 financial year, finalised in May, includes a further increase in studentship funding and the creation of a teaching laboratory in support of a Quantitative Methods teaching hub. The Department remains committed to securing further investment in graduate studentships whilst maintaining a solid funding basis for its core teaching and research activities.
