Overview of the post

The Department of Politics and International Relations (DPIR), in association with Nuffield College, are seeking to appoint an Associate Professor in Quantitative Political Science Research Methods.

We invite applicants with a strong research background in Quantitative Political Science Research Methods. Expertise in computational methods, causal inference methods, or formal theory is desirable. The successful candidate will be expected to conduct advanced research; to teach, supervise, and examine in political science research methods at the undergraduate and graduate level; to contribute to the graduate research design and methods teaching sequences; to play a part in the administrative work of the Department and the College; and to act as a College Supervisor for graduate students. The post will be held in conjunction with a Professorial Fellowship at Nuffield College. The post-holder will have a room for teaching and research in the Department of Politics of International Relations, Manor Road Building, Manor Road, and an office in Nuffield College.

The Department strongly encourages applications from women and/or candidates from a BME background as they are currently under-represented in academic posts in the Department.

If you would like to discuss this post and find out more about joining the academic community at Oxford, please contact Petra Schleiter, Joint Head of the Department of Politics and International Relations (petra.schleiter@politics.ox.ac.uk) or Ben Ansell, Director of Research Training (ben.ansell@politics.ox.ac.uk). Queries about Nuffield College can be addressed to the College's Warden, Sir Andrew Dilnot (andrew.dilnot@nuffield.ox.ac.uk) or the Senior Tutor, Dr Eleni Kechagia-Ovseiko (senior.tutor@nuffield.ox.ac.uk).

All enquiries will be treated in strict confidence; they will not form part of the selection decision.

The role of Associate Professor at Oxford

Associate Professor is the main academic career grade at Oxford with a focus on research and teaching, spanning the full range of professor grades in the USA. In exceptional cases, the title of full Professor may be awarded on appointment. Once in post Associate Professors may apply for the title of Full Professor as their career progresses. Associate Professors are appointed jointly by a University department/faculty and an Oxford college and you will have a contract with both.

Associate Professors are full members of University departments/faculties and of college governing bodies playing a role in the democratic governance of the University and their college. You will join a lively, intellectually stimulating and multi-disciplinary community performing to the highest international levels in research and teaching, with extraordinary levels of innovation, creativity and entrepreneurship.

There is considerable flexibility in the organisation of duties, with three 8-week undergraduate teaching terms and generous sabbatical leave to balance teaching and research (please see the Benefits, Terms and Conditions section for further details of sabbatical leave). There is the potential for temporary changes to the balance of duties between College and University to enable a focus on different aspects of work at different stages in your career.

Oxford offers many opportunities for professional development in research and teaching. As their career progresses Associate Professors may apply for the title of full Professor in annual exercises. If the title is conferred, you will also have access to professorial merit pay opportunities.

Appointments are confirmed as permanent on successful completion of a review during the first five years. The vast majority of Associate Professors successfully complete this initial review. An accelerated review process can be applied for by appointees who have already attained tenure.

Duties of the post

The main duties of the post are as follows:

For the Department

- To engage in research and contribute through world-class publications to the department's and University's international reputation for research excellence;
- To develop courses and provide teaching and supervision to undergraduate and graduate students on taught courses and to supervise research students in the department;
- To examine students as required;
- To participate in the administrative work of the department in both term time and vacation under the direction of the Head of Department or their delegate;
- To raise external research funds, preparing proposals and securing grants and funding for major new research projects;
- To develop research impact beyond academia by engaging with a wide range of policy makers, practitioners and other non-academic stakeholders.

Teaching and supervising will include specifically:

- The provision and organization of graduate teaching in Quantitative Research Methods and Research Design, as appropriate, through classes, tutorials, for the Department's MPhil, MSc and DPhil programmes and serving as a course provider for one or more optional graduate courses;
- Serving as Director of Research Training as required by the Head of Department;
- Supervision of graduate students on the MPhil and DPhil programmes;
- Contributing, as appropriate, to other graduate courses in politics, including the MPhils in Comparative Government, and in European Politics and Society, International Relations and/or the MSc in Politics Research;
- The provision and organization of undergraduate teaching (tutorials, classes and lectures) including for the undergraduate Q-Step course or equivalent;
- Undergraduate and graduate examining;
- Assessment and admissions duties for the graduate programmes in the Department, including an ability to assess outside the candidate's immediate area of specialization.

Teaching duties

The level of expected teaching and supervision is equivalent to a standard two-two teaching load in North America. For the purposes of managing academic workload, departments use 'stint units' to account for teaching and supervision contributions. Various amounts of stint are assigned to different teaching and supervision activities, for example, supervision of a doctoral student counts for 24 stint units per year, and lectures, tutorials, class teaching all count towards stint.<sup>1</sup> The amount of teaching normally must not exceed an average of 288 teaching units per year without approval by the divisional board.

This obligation could, for instance, be met over the course of the academic year by supervision of 4 doctoral students, 5 masters' students, the provision of two eight-week two-hour graduate seminar series, a set of eight undergraduate lectures (24 units) and 3 two-hour classes for the graduate methods programme.

For the College

In addition to the duties relating to the University side of the post, the appointee will also be required to perform the College duties outlined below:

- To play an active part in the academic and research life of the College, for example by organising seminars, workshops and other academic activities and events;
- To contribute to the recruitment, admission, and training of high calibre graduate students;
- To act as College Supervisor for Nuffield students and mentor for postdocs and incoming academic staff as requested; College Supervisors are expected to meet with their supervisees at the course of the term and to write progress reports at the end of each term;
- To contribute to the governance and academic strategy of the College through membership of the College's Governing Body and other committees, as appropriate.

Selection criteria

Your application will be judged only against the criteria which are set out below. You should ensure that your application shows clearly how your skills and experience meet these criteria.

The University is committed to fairness, consistency and transparency in selection decisions. Members of selection committees will be aware of the principles of equality of opportunity, fair selection and the risks of bias. There will be both female and male selection committee members. The selection committee may be advised by other qualified members of the Department in assessing application materials.

For those candidates selected for interview, there will be an informal opportunity to meet the Heads of Department and other members of the academic staff. These meetings will play no part in the selection process.

If, for any reason, you have taken a career break or have had an atypical career and wish to disclose this in your application, the selection committee will take this into account, recognising that the quantity of your research may be reduced as a result.

Selection criteria

Essential

- A completed doctorate in political science, international relations, or a closely related field;
- An outstanding, world-class portfolio of research and publications in quantitative political science research methods, as well as an exciting future research programme;
- An ability to secure competitive external funding for research, manage research projects and deliver on grants;
- University teaching experience in quantitative political science research methods and research design.
- University teaching experience in teaching politics at the undergraduate/postgraduate level, including thesis supervision and course development, and an ability to contribute to the teaching of research methods or research design at the postgraduate level;
- Experience of assessment and examining in undergraduate/post-graduate degree programmes;
- Evidence of participation in and successful delivery of academic and administrative duties in a university.

Desirable

- Expertise in computational methods, causal inference methods, or formal theory.
- A successful record of securing competitive external funding for research, managing research projects and delivering on grants;
- A track record of delivering research impact beyond academia by engaging with a wide range of policy makers, practitioners and other non-academic stakeholders.

How to apply

To apply, visit <https://www.jobs.ox.ac.uk/>, click on the relevant post title, then click on the Apply Now button on the 'Job Details' page and follow the on-screen instructions to register as a new user or log-in if you have applied previously. Please refer to the "Terms of Use" in the left hand menu bar for information about privacy and data protection.

You will be asked to upload the following information:

- Your CV, including a full list of publications, details of teaching experience (maximum 2 pages) and a statement of research interests (maximum 2 pages).
- A covering letter or statement explaining how you meet the criteria set out above using examples of your skills and experience. This may include experience gained in education or employment (maximum 2 pages).
- Details of three referees whom you have asked to submit confidential reference letters. Please ensure that your referees send their letters by the stated deadline for applications. Reference letters should be sent by email to vacancies@politics.ox.ac.uk. If you do not wish the University to contact any of your three referees before being progressed to the long list stage, please answer the relevant reference questions accordingly.

Candidates who are short listed will be asked to provide two article-length research samples that are illustrative of their research and any further information that is relevant to this position.

The University and colleges welcome applications from candidates who have a disability or long-term health condition and is committed to providing long term support.

The University's disability advisor can provide support to applicants with a disability, please see www.admin.ox.ac.uk/eop/disab/ for details.

Please let us know if you need any adjustments to the recruitment process, including the provision of these documents in large print, audio or other formats. If we invite you for interviews, we will ask whether you require any particular arrangements at the interview. The University Access Guide gives details of physical access to University buildings www.admin.ox.ac.uk/access/.

Please upload all documents as PDF files with your name and the document type in the filename.

All applications must be received by 12.00 noon on the closing date stated in the online advertisement.

Should you experience any difficulties using the online application system, please email recruitment.support@admin.ox.ac.uk. Further help and support is available from <https://hrsystems.admin.ox.ac.uk/recruitment-support>. ## The Department of Politics and International Relations

Politics and International Relations at Oxford University have a long and distinguished history in the education of leading figures in academia, politics, the media and public life, both in the UK and internationally. Teaching and research activities in this area were combined in 2000 to create a Department of Politics and International Relations. With around 90 academic staff, the Department is one of the largest departments internationally and consistently ranks first in The Times and The Guardian university guides for the subject. It is home to major research projects, a vibrant community of academic visitors, and a strong group of post-doctoral researchers, supported by highly competitive research fellowships, working in the full range of disciplinary sub-fields.

The Department is located in the Social Sciences building at Manor Road, along with the Department of Economics, and the integrated Social Science Library. The building provides excellent facilities including a lecture theatre, a large computer laboratory and a range of seminar rooms as well as a cafeteria and common room for use by both staff and students. The Manor Road Building is served by a shared IT and web team.

The Department contains over 100 graduate workstations. An experienced administrative team supports the Department's research and teaching activities. The Department's core administration currently comprises twenty two staff, grouped into teams that provide dedicated support for: Courses, Finance, HR, Research Support, and Communications and Alumni Relations. The administrative teams work closely with each other as well as with staff in other parts of the University, in particular with the Social Sciences division, Personnel Services, and Research Services, as well as with the University's many colleges.

Research Methods at DPIR

MPhil students in the two-year Comparative Government, European Politics and Society, and International Relations programs, as well as students taking a one year MSc in Politics and those beginning the DPhil program, are required to take a sequence of methods training, including in quantitative methods. The MPhils are advanced two-year (twenty-one months) postgraduate degrees, which provide training in research techniques and methodology suitable for those who later wish to embark upon doctoral research and enables students to acquire substantive knowledge in this sub-area of the discipline. The MSc is a one-year program specifically designed for those who intend to immediately commence a DPhil.

All students are asked to take either an Introductory Statistics class in their first term, or if they have previously completed an equivalent course, Intermediate Statistics in the same term. In their second term students are given the choice of taking either Causal Inference, Formal Analysis, or Qualitative Methods (with some students auditing multiple classes). In the third term, a wide array of four-week specialist methods courses are offered. In recent years these have included classes on quantitative text analysis, panel data, multilevel modelling, experimental methods, archival research GIS and spatial econometrics, political ethnography, and many others. While R is used as the main language of instruction, the department has also recently offered courses in Python.

All students also take a class on research design in their area of study, discussing important broader issues including concept development, measurement, methodological triangulation, the credibility revolution, and writing research proposals. Many of the Masters and DPhil students who have taken these courses are now teaching qualitative and quantitative methods at major universities in Europe and North America.

Nuffield College

There are 38 self-governing and independent colleges at Oxford, giving both academic staff and students the benefits of belonging to a small, interdisciplinary community as well as to a large, internationally-renowned institution. The collegiate system fosters a strong sense of community, bringing together leading academics and students across subjects, and from different cultures and countries.

Nuffield College is a graduate college within the University of Oxford which was founded in 1937 and specialises in the Social Sciences, particularly Economics, Politics, and Sociology. It aims to be one of the world's outstanding social science institutions, providing a stimulating research-orientated environment for postgraduate students, research fellows, and senior academics and promoting, according to its Charter, "the study by co-operation between academic and non-academic persons of social (including economic and political) problems". About 30 students are admitted each year to undertake both taught masters courses and doctoral research for most of whom the College provides financial support in the form of studentships. In total there are about 100 students enrolled at any one time, many of whom either live in College or have offices in College. In addition in 2021/22 the College has 36 permanent academic Fellows (of whom 5 are College-funded Official Fellows), 66 Research Fellows (of whom 15 are College-funded Postdoctoral Prize Fellows), 28 non-academic Visiting Fellows drawn from the world of business, industry, politics and administration; and a number of Research Officers working on research projects run by the College's Fellows. The College enjoys strong links with the University's social science departments and works closely with the Social Sciences Division.

Nuffield College has been – and continues to be – the source of some of the major research developments in social science. These include the British Election Studies and the major programme of research on Social Mobility in Britain. It was the birthplace of the "Oxford School" of Industrial Relations; it pioneered the development of cost benefit analysis for developing countries; and it has made a major contribution to the methodology of econometrics. At the moment the College hosts five research centres: the Centre for Experimental Social Sciences (CESS); the Centre for Social Investigation (CSI); the Nuffield Politics Research Centre; the Nuffield Centre for Applied Macro Policy (NuCAMP); and the Climate Econometrics project (see further information below).

Professorial Fellowships at Nuffield College

The Associate Professor in Quantitative Political Science Research Methods will be elected to a Professorial Fellowship at Nuffield College. Professorial Fellowships are typically linked with tenure-track academic positions within the University of Oxford (joint appointments), at the level of either associate or full professor. The post-holders are expected to engage in advanced study and research in their field of expertise, falling within the research areas of the College; to provide supervision and academic support for graduate students; to participate actively in the intellectual life of the College; and to take part in College governance. Professorial Fellows are expected to be members of the College's Governing Body (subject to appointment as a charity trustee). Governing Body Fellows are ex officio trustees of the charity which is "The Warden and Fellows of Nuffield College in the University of Oxford".

Research Facilities

The size and specialised nature of the College enable its members to work closely with one another in a stimulating and research-orientated environment. A "critical mass" of students and Fellows working in the social sciences is helpful both in terms of facilities and of intellectual activity, such as the active seminar and conference programme.

The College Library is one of the finest in the social sciences and functions as a research library, reflecting the academic interests of the Fellows. Fellows also have access to all the facilities of the Bodleian Library, including full-text access to nearly all journals in the social sciences.

The College has an Information Systems Department to serve the computing needs of Fellows.

The College provides facilities and grants for Fellows to invite academic visitors to the College to enable them to carry out collaborative work.

Research Centres in Nuffield College

The College currently hosts five research centres, focusing on different aspects of and approaches to the study of social sciences:

The Centre for Experimental Social Sciences (CESS) was established to promote and facilitate experimental research by social scientists in Oxford. The CESS offers an on-site laboratory with 25 computer stations, and maintains a large subject pool. The facilities are designed to support a wide range of experiments. The CESS also maintains an online panel of UK residents, and provides support for fielding online survey experiments and, recently, the facility for virtual lab experiments. The CESS has a regular seminar series that highlights the work of renowned scholars employing experimental methods. Periodic workshops held by the CESS provide training for researchers in experimental research design, experimental data analysis, and programming languages (including z-Tree and Qualtrics). More information on CESS is available at <https://cess-web.nuff.ox.ac.uk/>.

The Centre for Social Investigation (CSI) is an interdisciplinary research programme; in keeping with the College's Charter which emphasizes "the study by co-operation between academic and non-academic persons of social (including economic and political) problems", the Centre aims to address contemporary social issues of public interest and to engage with policy-makers and the public more generally, carrying out authoritative, non-partisan research on central social issues which draws upon expertise in economics, politics and sociology and related disciplines such as social policy. The Centre seeks to establish itself as an independent and rigorous source of information and analysis of contemporary social issues, communicated in an accessible way to nontechnical audiences, in addition to publishing technical work for academic audiences. Professor Anthony Heath was the inaugural Director for the CSI and Professor David Kirk is the current Director, assisted by post-doctoral researchers. More information on CSI is available at <http://csi.nuff.ox.ac.uk/>.

The Nuffield Politics Research Centre was established with the aim of conducting innovative research in problems and challenges of contemporary politics, specialising in questions of accountability and representation, and improving communication of political science research to people in public life. The Nuffield Politics Research Centre includes the Nuffield Elections Unit, of which Professor Geoffrey Evans is Director, and which is home to our research on the British Election Study, as well as the UK local elections archive. The Director of the Centre is Professor Jane Green, who is currently a member of the Scientific Leadership Team of the 2019-2023 BES, together with Professor Geoffrey Evans. The Centre includes affiliated Research Fellows, currently Professor Gary King (Harvard University Professor, and Director of the Institute for Quantitative Social Science), and a number of active graduate and post-graduate researchers in the University. More information is available at <https://politicscentre.nuffield.ox.ac.uk/>.

The Nuffield Centre for Applied Macro Policy (NuCAMP) was established in the Summer of 2017 to create a space in which academics and policymakers can freely and openly discuss current trends, insights and policies that influence how economies function. Through its convening power and activities focussed on holding conferences, workshops and visitor programmes, NuCamp fosters the development of fresh analytical and empirical approaches that promise to create better links and improved knowledge exchange between the academic and policy worlds of macroeconomic problems.

The Climate Econometrics project and network, under the leadership of Professor Sir David Hendry, is based at Nuffield College, in collaboration with the Department of Economics at the University of Victoria, and the Environmental Defense Fund. The research is funded by the Robertson Foundation. The project and network concentrate on developing econometric methods to augment climate-economic research by helping disentangle complex relationships between human actions and climate responses and their associated economic effects, masked by stochastic trends and breaks. The project team aims to improve our understanding of the impact of humanity on climate and vice versa, as well as on how econometrics can be used in climate-economic research, and bring together researchers in the field of Climate Econometrics through an international network. More information on the Climate Econometrics project is available at <http://www.climateeconometrics.org/>

The Politics Group

The current permanent Fellows in the College's Politics Group and their respective research areas are:

Tarik Abou-Chadi The interplay of electoral competition and political institutions as a determinant of change and persistence in advanced democracies and relates to the fields of comparative politics, political behaviour and political economy.

Lia Brazil is a Nuffield Research Fellow working on the AHRC-funded project International NGOs and the Long Humanitarian Century: Legacy, Legitimacy and Leading into the Future. Zach Grant is a Nuffield

Research Fellow affiliated with the Nuffield Politics Research Centre with interests in social class and inequality; families and intergenerational resource distribution; environmentalism and Green parties; and party competition and elections. Hunter Harris is a Nuffield Research Fellow working on a project sponsored by Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer on “The History of Slavery and the City of London”. Ryan Rafaty is a Nuffield Research Fellow in the Climate Econometrics research programme, researching the design, sequencing, and comparative performance of climate change mitigation policies under varied political regimes and socio-economic circumstances. Anthony Taylor is a Nuffield Research Fellow in Political Theory with interests in knowledge and expertise in democratic life. Jacob Barrett is a Postdoctoral Research Fellow in the Global Priorities Institute at the Oxford Faculty of Philosophy and a Non-stipendiary Research Fellow at Nuffield, with research interests in social and political philosophy and normative ethics. Mads Elkjaer is a Postdoctoral Research Fellow on the WEALTHPOL Project at the Department of Politics and International Relations, and a Non-stipendiary Research Fellow at Nuffield College, with research interests lying in the fields of comparative politics and political economy, focusing on political representation, economic inequality, and redistribution. Nelson Ruiz is a Leverhulme Early Career Fellow in the Department of Politics and International Relations and a Non-stipendiary Research Fellow at Nuffield College, with interests in the political economy of development, and the role of money in politics. Ryan Shandler is a Postdoctoral Researcher on the ERC-funded Banklash Research Project in the Blavatnik School of Government and a Nuffield Non-stipendiary Research Fellow, whose research focuses on the intersection between technology and international security. Martin Van den Brink holds a British Academy Postdoctoral Research Fellowship in the Department of Politics and International Relations working on EU law and politics, citizenship and migration, legislative studies, religious freedom and non-discrimination. Tomas Wallenius is a Leverhulme Early Career Fellow in the Department of Politics and International Relations and a Nuffield Non-stipendiary Research Fellow with research interests in International Relations theory, political theory and global international history.

Nuffield Fellows are closely involved in research and teaching within the Department of Politics and International Relations and its relevant centres, including the Centre for the Study of Democratic Government, the Centre for International Studies, the Centre for the Study of Social Justice, the Latin American Centre, and the Rothermere American Institute. A Nuffield political scientist currently serves as editor of Comparative Political Studies.

Social Sciences Division

The University’s academic departments and faculties are organised into four large groups, known as Academic Divisions (Social Sciences, Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences (MPLS), Medical Sciences, and Humanities). The divisions are responsible for academic strategy and operational planning, oversight of the teaching and research of their constituent departments and faculties, and for personnel and resource management. The social sciences at Oxford are distinctive for both their depth and breadth, with over 1,000 academic and research staff working across fifteen departments, faculties and schools. The Head of the Social Sciences Division is Professor Timothy Power, who is a member of the University’s Council.

The Division is a world-leading centre of research and education in the social sciences. The Times Higher Education (THE) University Rankings placed the University of Oxford as number one in the world for Social Sciences in 2018 and 2019. REF 2014 confirmed Oxford as the UK powerhouse for research in the social sciences, accounting for more 4* research than any other institution. Our academic and research staff and students are international thought leaders, generating new evidence, insights and policy tools with which to address some of the major global challenges facing humanity, such as sustainable resource management, poverty and forced migration, effective governance and justice. As well as active interdisciplinary links with researchers in other divisions at Oxford, we engage and collaborate extensively with other universities and a wide range of governmental and non-governmental practitioner communities such as law, business, public health and welfare, international development and education around the world. The Division has an extensive portfolio of external funders, partners and supporters, with competitively-awarded external research income exceeding £50 million per year and philanthropic income over £25 million a year. As part of our commitment to equality of opportunity, eight of our departments have achieved bronze Athena SWAN awards: the Blavatnik School of Government, Economics, Education, International Development, Law, Geography & the Environment, Anthropology & Museum Ethnography and the Saïd Business School, with all our other departments either in the process of applying or scheduled to do so shortly.

The Division delivers an exceptional range of high-quality educational programmes all underpinned by the innovative research being undertaken by our academics. The student body is made up of over 2,000 undergraduate students, nearly 3,000 students studying postgraduate taught programmes and 1,200 postgraduate research students. The programmes we offer are wide-ranging, often interdisciplinary and include professionally-oriented provision in areas such as business, law and education. The Division is home to several of Oxford's most widely recognised teaching programmes, such as Philosophy, Politics and Economics (PPE) at undergraduate level; and at the Masters level programmes such as the Bachelor in Civil Law (BCL), Environmental Change and Management, International Relations, and Social Data Science.

About the University of Oxford

Oxford's departments and colleges aim to lead the world in research and education for the benefit of society both in the UK and globally. Oxford's researchers engage with academic, commercial and cultural partners across the world to stimulate high-quality research and enable innovation through a broad range of social, policy and economic impacts.

Oxford's self-governing community of international scholars includes Professors, Associate Professors, other college tutors, senior and junior research fellows and over 2,500 other University research staff. Research at Oxford combines disciplinary depth with an increasing focus on inter-disciplinary and multi-disciplinary activities addressing a rich and diverse range of issues.

Oxford's strengths lie both in empowering individuals and teams to address fundamental questions of global significance, and in providing all staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that supports everyone to develop and do their best work. Recognising that diversity is a great strength, and vital for innovation and creativity, Oxford aspires to build a truly inclusive community which values and respects every individual's unique contribution.

While Oxford has long traditions of scholarship, it is also forward-looking, creative and cutting-edge. Oxford is one of Europe's most entrepreneurial universities. It consistently has the highest external research income of any university in the UK (the most recent figures are available at www.ox.ac.uk/about/organisation/finance-and-funding), and is ranked first in the UK for university spin-outs, with more than 130 spin-off companies created to date. Oxford is also recognised as a leading supporter of social enterprise.

Oxford admits undergraduate students with the intellectual potential to benefit fully from the small group learning to which Oxford is deeply committed. Meeting in small groups with their tutor, undergraduates are exposed to rigorous scholarly challenge and learn to develop their critical thinking, their ability to articulate their views with clarity, and their personal and intellectual confidence. They receive a high level of personal attention from leading academics.

Oxford has a strong postgraduate student body which now numbers over 10,000. Postgraduates are attracted to Oxford by the international standing of the faculty, by the rigorous intellectual training on offer, by the excellent research and laboratory facilities available, and by the resources of the museums and libraries, including one of the world's greatest libraries, the Bodleian.

University Benefits, Terms and Conditions

Salary

The successful candidate will be appointed on the Oxford scale for Associate Professors, within the range £48,835 to £65,574 p.a.

Those appointed below the top of this salary range will receive annual increments until they reach the top point. There is also an annual 'cost-of-living' review. In exceptional cases, the Department/Faculty board may propose the award of additional increments, within the substantive scale, to an Associate Professor at any time during their appointment.

Additional remuneration may be paid for graduate supervision, examining and some tutorial teaching. Those holding administrative appointments within the department/faculty may be eligible for additional payments.

Pension

The University offers generous pension provision. Associate Professors are offered membership of the Universities Superannuation Scheme.

Details are available at <https://finance.web.ox.ac.uk/uss>

Sabbatical leave

You will be eligible for sabbatical leave to allow you to focus on your research. In general, one term of leave is available for each six terms worked. This leave may either be taken as one term of leave after 6 terms of service or accumulated and taken as one year of leave after 6 years of service.

Outside commitments

You may apply to spend up to 30 working days in each year on projects outside your employment duties, such as consultancy, spin-out activity and membership of research councils and other bodies. There is no limit to earnings from these activities without deduction from salary. Details of the approval process may be found at <https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/holding-outside-appointments>.

Guidance is also available on:

ownership of intellectual property <https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/council-regulations-7-of-2002> and managing conflicts of interest

<https://researchsupport.admin.ox.ac.uk/governance/integrity>

Membership of Congregation

Oxford's community of scholars governs itself through Congregation which is its "parliament". You will be a voting member of Congregation.

See <https://www.ox.ac.uk/about/organisation/governance> and <https://governance.admin.ox.ac.uk/legislation/statute-iv-congregation> for further details.

Family support

The University offers generous family leave arrangements, such as maternity, adoption, paternity and shared parental leave. Details are available at <https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/family-leave-for-academic-staff>. You will have considerable flexibility in the day-to-day organisation of duties in the Associate Professor role. Requests for flexible working patterns will be accommodated as far as possible.

You will be eligible to apply to use the University nurseries (subject to availability of places). For details of the nurseries and how to apply for places, please see <https://childcare.admin.ox.ac.uk/home>.

The University subscribes to My Family Care, a benefit which allows staff to register for emergency back-up childcare and adultcare services, a 'speak to an expert' phone line and a wide range of guides and webinars through a website called the Work + Family Space.

For more details, please see <https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/my-family-care>

The Oxford University Newcomers' Club is run by volunteers, whose aim is to help the newly-arrived partners of visiting scholars, of graduate students and of newly appointed academic and administrative members of the University to settle in and to give them opportunities to meet people in Oxford. Further information is available at www.newcomers.ox.ac.uk/.

Welcome for International Staff

One of Oxford's great strengths is its truly international body of research and teaching staff from over 140 countries, and we welcome applications from academics across the world. We can help international staff and partners/families make the transition to Oxford. Information about relocation, living and working in the UK and Oxford is available at welcome.ox.ac.uk.

If you require a visa, we have a dedicated Staff Immigration Team to support successful applicants through the immigration process (for Global Talent and Skilled Worker visas) from job offer through to arrival in the UK. This is subject to the eligibility criteria being met for the respective visa routes. We will aim to assist with the cost of the application fees for visas and immigration health surcharges.

Relocation

Subject to UK tax regulations and the availability of funding, a relocation allowance may be available.

Promoting diversity

The University is committed to recruiting and retaining the best people, whoever they are, to ensure equality of opportunity. The Vice Chancellor's Diversity Fund provides resources for innovative projects to promote diversity.

The Equality and Diversity Unit promotes good practice across the University by developing policies and offering training, and runs a range of support networks for staff. It works closely with Colleges, the Oxford University Student Union and external campaign groups.

Please see <https://edu.admin.ox.ac.uk/home> for details.

Other benefits and discounts for University employees

The University has a range of facilities and benefits for its staff, including discounted health insurance, sustainable travel schemes, and discounts in local shops and restaurants. Details are available at:

<https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/staff-benefits>
<https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/discounts>

Pre-employment screening

Your appointment will be subject to the University's standard pre-employment screening. This will include right-to-work, proof of identity, references, a pre-employment health declaration, and any other checks as applicable to the post. We advise you to read the notes for applicants at <https://jobs.ox.ac.uk/pre-employment-checks>.

Length of appointment

Appointments to Associate Professorships at Oxford are confirmed as permanent on successful completion of a review during the first five years.

The University operates an employer justified retirement age for all academic posts, for which the retirement date is 30 September immediately preceding the 69th birthday.

The justification for this may be found at <https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/the-ejra>

For existing employees, any employment beyond the retirement age is subject to approval through the EJRA procedures. Further details can be found at <https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/the-ejra>

Data Privacy

Please note that any personal data submitted to the University as part of the job application process will be processed in accordance with the GDPR and related UK data protection legislation. For further information, please see the University's Privacy Notice for Job Applicants at: <https://compliance.admin.ox.ac.uk/job-applicant-privacy-policy>.

The University's Policy on Data Protection is available at: <https://compliance.admin.ox.ac.uk/data-protection-policy>.

College Benefits, Terms and Conditions

In addition to the University salary, the Associate Professor in Quantitative Political Science Research Methods will receive the College's Academic Responsibility Allowance, which is currently £23,490 per annum, taxable and pensionable, and paid directly to the Fellow; the rate is reviewed each August.

The successful candidate will also receive the following benefits that are normally associated with Professorial Fellowships at Nuffield College (2021/22 rates):

- Research Allowance: Up to £13,793 per annum, refunded against specific, approved research-related expenditure, and therefore not taxable.
- Entertainment Allowance: £654 per annum.
- Start-up allowance: Up to £5,743 available in the Fellow's first year to assist with set-up costs, such as IT and other office equipment.
- Option to join the College's private health insurance scheme. Further details about the scheme are available on request.
- The College operates a Housing Scheme for Fellows designed to assist with the purchase of a dwelling in the Oxford area. Further details about the scheme are available on request.

Professorial Fellows are provided with an office in College and relevant IT equipment and software for the duration of the Fellowship; they are entitled to Common Table meals (i.e. free lunches and dinners in College, including High Table) and are members of the College's Senior Common Room (subscription fees payable).

Offer of employment

Applications for this post will be considered by a selection committee containing representatives from DPIR and Nuffield College. The selection committee is responsible for conducting all aspects of the recruitment and selection process; it does not, however, have the authority to make the final decision as to who should be appointed. The final decision will be made by the Social Sciences Divisional Board and the Governing Body of Nuffield College on the basis of a recommendation made by the selection committee. No offer of appointment will be valid, therefore, until and unless the recommendation has been approved by both the Divisional Board and the Governing Body, and a formal contractual offer has been made.
