

Job Description

Job title	Research Assistant
Division	Social Sciences
Department	Politics and International Relations
Location	Manor Road Building, Manor Road, Oxford, OX1 3UQ
Grade and salary	Grade 6: £32,332 - £38,205 per annum (pro rata for part time)
Hours	Part-time, 0.10 FTE (3.75 hours per week)
Contract type	Fixed-term for 12 months from 1 December 2023 or as soon as possible thereafter
Reporting to	Dr Katerina Tertychnaya
Vacancy reference	168556
Additional information	Closing date – midday (UK time) on Friday 10 November 2023 Interviews will be held the week commencing 20 November 2023

The role

We wish to appoint one part-time researcher at 10% FTE to work on the research project Nonviolent Repression in Electoral Autocracies, led by Dr Katerina Tertychnaya. The project, currently in its third year, is funded by the UKRI Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC).

The project investigates how contemporary electoral autocracies, regimes that combine authoritarian practices with multiparty elections, use legal strategies of repression, delegated to bureaucrats and courts, in order to restrict protest and hinder opposition and voter coordination. The project draws empirical evidence from contemporary Russia. It includes quantitative opinion surveys, quantitative and qualitative content analysis, and the collection of protest-event data.

The successful candidate will primarily contribute to the design, fielding, and analysis of public opinion surveys, under the supervision of Dr Tertychnaya.

The post can commence as soon as possible after December 1, 2023.

As a career development post, the position includes a skills training budget, and budget for international conference attendance. Current Research Associates, doctoral students, have attended the European Political Science Association meeting (EPSA) and received training as part of the Essex Summer School in Quantitative methods.

Responsibilities

The successful candidate will undertake duties in connection with the project as directed by and developed with Dr Tertytchnaya, including:

- Designing, fielding, and analysing opinion surveys in Russia
- Collecting data on protest notifications, and protest-events
- Maintaining and managing the resultant protest-event datasets and codebooks
- Analysis of evidence and joint development of research findings
- Archival and publication of data in line with best practice
- Authoring academic journal articles and policy outputs
- Contribution to other project work packages and sub-projects.
- Broader support to the project and its goals, for example through attending team meetings, liaising with partners and stakeholders, assisting in the organisation of events.

Job descriptions cannot be exhaustive and so the post holder may be required to undertake other duties which are in line with the scope, spirit and purpose of the job as requested by the line manager.

As duties and responsibilities change and develop the job description may be reviewed and be subject to amendment in consultation with the post holder

Selection criteria

Essential

- Hold a first degree, together with some relevant experience
- Significant and demonstrable research interest and expertise in the politics of electoral autocracies
- Strong background and interest in empirical research methods and research design
- Fluency in statistical and programming languages such as R, Stata, Python or alternatives
- Independent and original problem-solving skills
- Effective and flexible time-management skills, including the demonstrated ability to deliver to deadlines
- Ability and willingness to plan and conduct work independently
- Capacity for, and commitment to, effective teamwork
- Excellent communication (written and oral) skills

Desirable

- Full professional proficiency or Native/Bilingual Proficiency in Russia
- Doctoral training in, and/or research experience with designing, fielding, analysing opinion surveys

Pre-employment screening

Standard checks

If you are offered the post, the offer will be subject to standard pre-employment checks. You will be asked to provide: proof of your right-to-work in the UK; proof of your identity; and (if we haven't done so already) we will contact the referees you have nominated. You will also be asked to complete a health declaration so that you can tell us about any health conditions or disabilities for which you may need us to make appropriate adjustments.

Please read the candidate notes on the University's pre-employment screening procedures at: <https://www.jobs.ox.ac.uk/pre-employment-checks>

About the University of Oxford

Welcome to the University of Oxford. We aim to lead the world in research and education for the benefit of society both in the UK and globally. Oxford's researchers engage with academic, commercial and cultural partners across the world to stimulate high-quality research and enable innovation through a broad range of social, policy and economic impacts.

We believe our strengths lie both in empowering individuals and teams to address fundamental questions of global significance, while providing all our staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that enables everyone to develop and do their best work. Recognising that diversity is our strength, vital for innovation and creativity, we aspire to build a truly diverse community which values and respects every individual's unique contribution.

While we have long traditions of scholarship, we are also forward-looking, creative and cutting-edge. Oxford is one of Europe's most entrepreneurial universities and we rank first in the UK for University spin-outs, and in recent years we have spun out 15-20 new companies every year. We are also recognised as leaders in support for social enterprise.

Join us and you will find a unique, democratic and international community, a great range of staff benefits and access to a vibrant array of cultural activities in the beautiful city of Oxford.

The Department of Politics and International Relations

Politics and International Relations at Oxford University have a long and distinguished history in the education of leading figures in academia, politics, the media and public life, both in the UK and internationally. Teaching and research activities in this area were combined in 2000 to create a Department of Politics and International Relations. With around 90 academic staff, the Department is one of the largest departments internationally and consistently ranks first in The Times and The Guardian University guides for the subject. It is home to major research projects, a vibrant community of academic visitors, and a strong group of post-doctoral researchers, supported by highly competitive research fellowships, working in the full range of disciplinary sub-fields.

The department attracts some of the best academics in the field to work here as permanent faculty, as part of major research projects or as academic visitors. There is a strong post- doctoral group supported by highly competitive research fellowships and working across a broad range of fields.

The Department is located in the Social Sciences building at Manor Road, along with the Department of Economics, the Centres for Criminology and Socio-Legal Studies, and the integrated Social Science Library. The building provides excellent facilities including a lecture theatre, a large computer laboratory and a range of seminar rooms as well as a cafeteria and common room for use by both staff and students. The Manor Road Building is served by a shared IT and web team.

An experienced Professional Services function supports the department's research and teaching activities. The department's core Professional Service is grouped into teams that provide dedicated support for: Courses, Research, Finance, HR, and Communications & Alumni Relations. The administrative teams work closely with each other as well as with staff in other parts of the University, in particular with the Social Sciences division, Personnel Services, and Research Services, as well as with the University's many colleges.
