Additional information	Closing date: midday (UK time) on Friday 02 May 2025 Interviews will be held as soon as possible thereafter

The role

You will report to Associate Professor Lauren Sukin and will be a member of a research group with responsibility for carrying out a programme of research examining the effects of political polarisation on nuclear strategy and policy. The post holder provides guidance to junior members of the research group including research assistants, PhD students, and/or project volunteers.

This post involves working on academic research that relies extensively on survey data. You will also be expected to work with interview data, historical case studies, cross-national and sub-national data, and the literature related to this programme of research.

Previous engagement with the subject matter related to the program of research is especially welcome, though not essential. Those lacking prior engagement with the subject matter will be expected to have the background to learn the necessary skills.

DPIR

DEPARTMENT OF POLITICS &
INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

Experience using advanced quantitative methods, including text-as-data methods, to analyse large data is welcome, although not essential. Knowledge of statistics and programming in R is essential.

You will be expected to contribute to co-authored publications in top quality peer-reviewed academic journals and will also have the opportunity to propose solo-authored publications under the programme of research for publication in top quality peer-reviewed academic journals. This job will especially suit those who have recently completed a DPhil/PhD and are looking for valuable research experience.

Responsibilities

- Manage own academic research and administrative activities. This involves small scale project management, to co-ordinate multiple aspects of work to meet deadlines
- Adapt existing and develop new research methodologies and materials
- Prepare working theories and analyse qualitative and/or quantitative data from a variety of sources, reviewing and refining theories as appropriate
- Contribute ideas for new research projects
- Develop ideas for generating research income, and present detailed research proposals to senior researchers
- Collaborate in the preparation of research publications, and book chapters
- Present papers at conferences or public meetings
- Act as a source of information and advice to other members of the group on methodologies or procedures
- Represent the research group at external meetings/seminars, either with other members of the group or alone
- Carry out collaborative projects with colleagues in partner institutions, and research groups

Additional duties:

As a new starter, you will be expected to complete mandatory training for the department and, if applicable, your role, these include:

- Information security and Data Protection
- Implicit Bias
- Bullying and Harassment training
- Equality and Diversity briefing

Access to these training courses will be provided once in post.

Selection criteria

Essential

- Hold, or be close to completion of a PhD/DPhil in Political Science, International Relations, or a related discipline
- Possess sufficient specialist knowledge in the discipline to work within established research programmes
- Ability to manage own academic research and associated activities
- Previous experience of contributing to publications/presentations
- Ability to contribute ideas for new research projects and research income generation
- Knowledge of statistics and programming in R
- Excellent communication skills, including the ability to write for publication, present research proposals and results, and represent the research group at meetings

Desirable

- Experience of independently managing a discrete area of a research project

- Experience of actively collaborating in the development of research articles for publication
- Experience using advanced quantitative methods, including text-as-data methods, to analyse large data
- Previous engagement with the subject matter related to the program of research

Pre-employment screening

Standard checks

If you are offered the post, the offer will be subject to standard pre-employment checks. You will be asked to provide: proof of your right-to-work in the UK; proof of your identity; and (if we haven't done so already) we will contact the referees you have nominated. You will also be asked to complete a health declaration so that you can tell us about any health conditions or disabilities for which you may need us to make appropriate adjustments.

Please read the candidate notes on the University's pre-employment screening procedures at: <https://www.jobs.ox.ac.uk/pre-employment-checks>

About Department of Politics and International Relations (DPIR)

Renowned as a global leader in its field, DPIR is one of the largest departments in the University of Oxford and is active in both undergraduate and graduate teaching. With around 90 academic staff, it is world class in international and national research and teaching; in September 2024, The Guardian ranked us the Number One University in the UK for Politics. We are home to major research projects, a vibrant community of academic visitors, and a strong group of post-doctoral researchers, supported by highly competitive research fellowships, working across a broad range of disciplinary fields.

An experienced Professional Services function supports the department's research and teaching activities. The department's core Professional Service is grouped into teams that provide dedicated support for: Courses, Research, Finance, HR, and Communications & Alumni Relations. The administrative teams work closely with each other as well as with staff in other parts of the University, particularly with the Social Sciences division, Personnel Services, and Research Services, as well as with the University's many colleges.

Equality, diversity, and inclusion (EDI) are central to Oxford's mission, driving research, teaching, and global impact. At DPIR, we uphold this commitment by fostering a diverse, inclusive community where all staff and students feel respected and valued, while also prioritising their wellbeing. To advance gender equality specifically and improve our working environment, we are preparing to apply for an Athena Swan Bronze Award. For further information about the department's commitment, please visit our EDI and Wellbeing webpages.

The Department is in the Social Sciences building at Manor Road, along with the Department of Economics, the Centres for Criminology and Socio-Legal Studies, and the integrated Social Science Library.

Social Sciences Division

Oxford is a world-leading centre for research across the disciplines of the social sciences. Characterised by a wide range of methodologies, themes and fields of scholarship, multi-disciplinary research and innovative ideas thrive in an environment underpinned by excellence across the disciplines of the social sciences.

Our approach to supporting research across the Social Sciences Division has been highly successful in the last ten years, with the volume of research awards continuing to rise and the development of a large number of research centres and groupings. Researchers at Oxford receive significant support and guidance in the development of their research, including career development, research and impact funding, research project design and management, and research outputs from academic and administrative colleagues across the University, division and departments.

About the University of Oxford

Welcome to the University of Oxford. We aim to lead the world in research and education for the benefit of society both in the UK and globally. Oxford's researchers engage with academic, commercial and cultural partners across the world to stimulate high-quality research and enable innovation through a broad range of social, policy and economic impacts.

We believe our strengths lie both in empowering individuals and teams to address fundamental questions of global significance, while providing all our staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that enables everyone to develop and do their best work. Recognising that diversity is our strength, vital for innovation and creativity, we aspire to build a truly diverse community which values and respects every individual's unique contribution.

While we have long traditions of scholarship, we are also forward-looking, creative and cutting-edge. Oxford is one of Europe's most entrepreneurial universities and we rank first in the UK for university spin-outs, and in recent years we have spun out 15-20 new companies every year. We are also recognised as leaders in support for social enterprise.
