

Job Description

Job title	Postdoctoral Research Fellow in Quantitative Political Science (Voter ID Project)
Division	Social Sciences
Department	Politics and International Relations
Location	Manor Road, Oxford, OX1 3UQ
Grade and salary	Researcher Grade 7: £39,424 - £43,984 per annum
Hours	Full time
Contract type	Fixed-term for 12 months from 1 September 2026 or as soon as possible thereafter
Reporting to	Principal Investigator, ESRC Voter ID Project
Vacancy reference	186584
Additional information	Closing date: 12 noon (UK time) on Friday 26 June 2026

The role

The Postdoctoral Research Fellow will work with Prof Petra Schleiter (Principal Investigator) to conduct research for an ESRC funded research project on the effects of voter ID in the UK. The appointee will be part of a research team including co-Is Prof Margit Tavits and Prof Jonathan Homola.

The project examines the effects on voters' behaviour and attitudes of the introduction of mandatory photo ID in the UK, where citizens have no national ID cards. It combines (i) original surveys with embedded experiments with historical data on the introduction of voter ID in (ii) Northern Ireland in the early 2000s, and (iii) in the English voter ID trials of 2018 and 2019.

The Postdoctoral Research Fellow will work on all strands of the project, with a particular focus on a new strand of work that focuses on young voters. This strand examines the effects of voter ID requirements on the political participation, attitudes, and experiences of the youngest cohort of voters, including potential future voters in the 16 to 17 year old age bracket. The Postdoctoral Research Fellow will work closely with other members of the team, including the PI and Co-Is.

Responsibilities

- Contribute to the design of the experimental research; code and test survey instruments; monitor survey data collection and quotas in collaboration with the survey firm; and perform data quality checks on the survey data;
- Adapt existing and develop new research methodologies and materials appropriate to the data;
- Act as a source of information and advice to other members of the group on methodologies or procedures;
- Analyse the original survey data collected for this project, the Voter ID trial data, and historical data on turnout, postal voting, etc. from Northern Ireland;
- Contribute to dissemination of the research findings, including conference presentations, to world class publications, and policy briefs;
- Contribute to the policy impact of the project by supporting engagement with a wide range of policy-makers, practitioners and other non-academic stakeholders including at the Electoral Commission, at the Department for Housing, Levelling up and Communities, and with Committee Clerks at the House of Commons, working on this aspect of electoral reform;
- Contribute to the administration of the project, including writing further applications for external research funds, and the organisation of workshops and conferences in collaboration with the PI;
- Manage own research activities and workload effectively, exercising appropriate initiative and judgment in carrying out assigned responsibilities within the overall project framework.

Additional duties:

As a new starter, you will be expected to complete required training for the department and, if applicable, your role, these include:

186584 – Postdoctoral Research Fellow in Quantitative Political Science (Voter ID Project)

- Information security and Data Protection
- Implicit Bias
- Bullying and Harassment training
- Equality and Diversity briefing
- Harassment in Higher Education

This is to ensure the department remains committed to providing a positive, supportive and inclusive environment for members of the University community from different backgrounds.

Access to these training courses will be provided once in post.

Selection criteria

Essential

- Hold or be close to completion of a doctorate in political science or a related field;
- Experience of survey experiments, survey design and survey data analysis;
- Expertise in advanced quantitative methods, research design, and experience of working in R;
- Ability to present research results clearly in research team meetings;
- Ability to publish in globally leading political science journals;
- An excellent understanding of electoral politics in the UK;
- Commitment to contribute to disseminating of the research findings through conference presentations and policy briefs;
- Evidence of, or potential for good citizenship and a willingness to undertake a share of the administrative and organizational project duties (e.g., further grant applications, workshop and conference organisation);
- Communication and interpersonal skills enabling the formation of good working relationships with all members of the project team and external stakeholders.
- Commitment to promoting a culture of equality, diversity and inclusion in the workplace, including the undertaking of appropriate training;

- Communication and interpersonal skills that enable good working relationships with colleagues and collaborators.
- An understanding of, and ability to, critically evaluate recent trends in the relevant field.

Desirable

- Experience of collaborating in the development of research articles for publication.

Pre-employment screening

Standard checks

If you are offered the post, the offer will be subject to standard pre-employment checks. You will be asked to provide: proof of your right-to-work in the UK; proof of your identity; and (if we haven't done so already) we will contact the referees you have nominated. You will also be asked to complete a health declaration so that you can tell us about any health conditions or disabilities for which you may need us to make appropriate adjustments.

About the University of Oxford

Welcome to the University of Oxford. We aim to lead the world in research and education for the benefit of society both in the UK and globally. Oxford's researchers engage with academic, commercial and cultural partners across the world to stimulate high-quality research and enable innovation through a broad range of social, policy and economic impacts.

We believe our strengths lie both in empowering individuals and teams to address fundamental questions of global significance, while providing all our staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that enables everyone to develop and do their best work. Recognising that diversity is our strength, vital for innovation and creativity, we aspire to build a truly diverse community which values and respects every individual's unique contribution.

While we have long traditions of scholarship, we are also forward-looking, creative and cutting-edge. Oxford is one of Europe's most entrepreneurial universities and we rank first in the UK for university spin-outs, and in recent years we have spun out 15-20 new companies every year. We are also recognised as leaders in support for social enterprise.

Join us and you will find a unique, democratic and international community, a great range of staff benefits and access to a vibrant array of cultural activities in the beautiful city of Oxford.

Department of Politics and International Relations

Renowned as a global leader in its field, DPIR is one of the largest departments in the University of Oxford and is active in both undergraduate and graduate teaching. With around 90 academic staff, it is world class in international and national research and teaching; in September 2024, The Guardian ranked us the Number One University in the UK for Politics. We are home to major research projects, a vibrant community of academic visitors, and a strong group of post-doctoral researchers, supported by highly competitive research fellowships, working across a broad range of disciplinary fields.

An experienced Professional Services function supports the department's research and teaching activities. The department's core Professional Service is grouped into teams that provide dedicated support for: Courses, Research, Finance, HR, and Communications & Alumni Relations. The administrative teams work closely with each other as well as with staff in other parts of the University, particularly with the Social Sciences division, Personnel Services, and Research Services, as well as with the University's many colleges.

Equality, diversity, and inclusion (EDI) are central to Oxford's mission, driving research, teaching, and global impact. At DPIR, we uphold this commitment by fostering a diverse, inclusive community where all staff and students feel respected and valued, while also prioritising their wellbeing. To advance gender equality specifically and improve our working environment, we are preparing to apply for an Athena Swan Bronze Award. For further information about the department's commitment, please visit our EDI and Wellbeing webpages.

The Department is in the Social Sciences building at Manor Road, along with the Department of Economics, the Centres for Criminology and Socio-Legal Studies, and the integrated Social Science Library.

The University's policy on retirement

The University operates an Employer Justified Retirement Age (EJRA) for very senior research posts at grade RSIV/D35 and clinical equivalents E62 and E82, which with effect from 1 October 2023 will be 30 September before the 70th birthday. The justification for this is explained at: <https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/the-ejra>.

For existing employees on these grades, any employment beyond the retirement age is subject to approval through the procedures: <https://hr.admin.ox.ac.uk/the-ejra>.

There is no normal or fixed age at which staff in posts at other grades have to retire. Staff at these grades may elect to retire in accordance with the rules of the applicable pension scheme, as may be amended from time to time.

Equality of opportunity

The University of Oxford is committed to equal opportunity, and to being an inclusive institution where everyone belongs and is supported to succeed. We recognise how the diversity of our community enriches our ability to deliver on our academic mission.

We welcome applications from individuals from all backgrounds, including those under-represented within higher education. No applicant or members of staff shall be unlawfully discriminated against on the basis of age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage or civil partnership, pregnancy or maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, or sexual orientation.

Recruitment, progression within employment and retention will be determined according to personal merit and the duties and requirements of the post. In all cases, the primary consideration will be the ability to perform the job.

Our commitment to equality and diversity goes hand in hand with our commitment to academic freedom and freedom of speech, as stated in the University's Equality Policy and Equality, Diversity and Inclusion Strategic Plan.

Academic Freedom and Freedom of Speech

Academic freedom and freedom of speech, as outlined in the University's Code of Practice on Freedom of Speech and Statute XII, are protected by law and by the University's statutes and policies. This includes the ability within academic practice to question and test received wisdom, and to put forward new ideas and controversial or unpopular opinions. These rights must be exercised within the law and within reasonable restrictions set out in University policies and codes of practice. As stated in the University's Equality Policy and Equality, Diversity and Inclusion Strategic Plan, our commitment to equality and diversity goes hand in hand with our commitment to academic freedom and freedom of speech.

Benefits of working at the University
